INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF MAR DEL PLATA FACULTY OF HUMANITIES

The Faculty of Humanities offers 18 undergraduate and 6 postgraduate majors, with a total of 3700 active students and 130 graduates per year. The training of graduates for intermediate teaching, especially in history, geography, literature, philosophy and English, as well as the preparation for research and professional practice, especially in sociology, political science, information science and education, is highlighted. The Faculty has important developments in research and postgraduate studies, with almost one third of its teachers with a doctorate degree and a large number of publications. About 5% of its teachers carry out some international mobility every year, and about a dozen foreign teachers and researchers visit our Faculty. The Faculty intends to continue training teachers and researchers to contribute to secondary education, research, transfer, extension and public and private activity in which graduates with high level in their academic education are inserted.

Open Chair of Palestinian Studies "Edward Said". With the sponsorship of the Free Chair of Palestinian Studies "Edward Said" of the Faculty of Philosophy and Literature of the UBA, meetings were held on the problems in the Middle East. These activities have a continuous character

Human Rights. Regularization actions were planned for the Human Rights Observatory of the Faculty of Humanities, with a view to strengthening a long-term agenda. Within this framework, and together with ADUM and the Student Center, a commemorative activity was held on May 8, called "Institutional Violence: legacies of the past, challenges of the present", with the presence of university researchers and organizations of Memory and Human Rights. In turn, during the week of the CRES, the Secretary of Extension held a meeting with his counterpart from the Faculty of Philosophy and Humanities of the National University of Córdoba and with members of the Provincial Memory Commission, and agreed to work together in 2019 due to the 50th Anniversary of the Cordobazo. The Observatory developed various activities during the last year.

Socio Community Practices. The Secretary accompanied the inauguration of the Seminar on Socio-Community Practices, dictated by the Department of Information Science. The dissemination and participation in the Teacher Training Course "Socio Community Practices: linkage between teaching and extension", provided by ADUM and SEU, is articulated.

TRANSFER AND LINKAGE LINES

The UNMDP has been developing policies and implementing concrete actions in innovation, promoting the transfer of research results and knowledge generated in the different spaces, as a key input that aims to promote its application for regional and local development. In line with this development, the Faculty of Humanities intends to create the Area of Innovation and Knowledge Transfer (I + T) in order to provide a space for the generation of discussion areas and action plans for the consolidation of the transfer of knowledge in the Humanities and Social Sciences. This area is aimed at strengthening institutional capacities for the transfer of research results, as a key input that aims to promote its social impact through public policy advice and its application for regional and local development. Since 2015, the Faculty of Humanities has a representative on the Board of Directors of the Business Incubator of the University. Currently, the Faculty has a technology linking project funded by the SPU in the program's call "Universities adding value". In addition, transfer agreements are developed or have been developed with public agencies and other institutions:
